The Cal Farley's Model of Leadership and Service®

sets out the six areas of human need that we must advance and nurture in the organization's leaders, team members and children. These six areas are Safety, Belonging, Achievement, Power, Purpose and Adventure. At Cal Farley's, we believe when these six areas of need are met, individuals are able to reach their potential.

Residential Care

Cal Farley's offers residential care for children and youth at two locations. Cal Farley's Boys Ranch, which is 36 miles northwest of Amarillo, Texas, includes both boys and girls ages five to 18. Cal Farley's Girlstown, U.S.A., which is 45 miles west of Lubbock, Texas, is a facility for teenage girls.

Residential care at our two facilities provides our residents with an atmosphere of nurturing support, consistent expectations and structure, which in turn creates a healthy environment where personal growth can occur. Cal Farley saw a champion in every child. Every day, we provide opportunities for boys and girls to become champions by developing the six "senses" they need – a sense of safety, a sense of belonging, a sense of achievement, a sense of power, a sense of purpose and a sense of adventure.

Christian Education. The children are offered nondenominational Christian education to promote awareness and respect for individual spirituality and religious conviction. This is accomplished through church services, weekly Bible studies, choir, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, retreats and summer camps.

Academics. Residents at Boys Ranch are educated through Boys Ranch Independent School District and Girlstown's residents attend Whiteface Consolidated Independent School District. A variety of programs ensures each child's academic success, including special education, gifted and talented, career and technology, and advanced placement/dual credit courses. School-related activities include athletics, cheerleading, drama, music and student organizations, such as FFA, Skills USA-VICA, and Family Careers and Community Leaders of America.

Community-Based Services

Cal Farley's receives inquiries each year regarding thousands of kids who, for whatever reason, are not eligible for or ready for campus-based living. Whether a child is qualified or not for residential care, we do everything we can to ensure all children are referred to organizations or institutions better suited to meet their needs, or that they are helped through our Family Resource Centers until they are ready to come to one of our two campuses.

Services for Families. We operate Cal Farley's Family Resource Centers in Amarillo, Austin, Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio. The FRC concept is a four-pronged operation that:

- 1) Assists families with in-home services while their child awaits admission to our campuses
- 2) Provides a direct link to campus staff for a family while a child is in care
- 3) Encourages family preservation and helps the child to transition after completion of a campus program
- 4) Offers services upon request to families of children who are not candidates for residential living, but who are struggling with challenges

Services Following On-Campus Living. Alumni Support is just one more example of our lifetime commitment to those in our care. Alumni Support helps youth make the transition from campus life to living as functioning members of their communities. Many services are available to our alumni, including transitional housing, case management and scholarships for college or vocational training.

About Cal Farley's

Cal Farley's has been "home" for more than 9,000 children since 1939, and has provided life-changing professional services at no cost for youth and families in need. In a Christ-centered atmosphere, Cal Farley's mission is to strengthen families and help children become successful adults. We make a lifelong commitment to nurture and care for each child we serve. We are blessed with a highly trained and committed staff at every level of our organization that puts the kids first in everything we do.

Our Mission

The Cal Farley organization provides professional services, in a Christ-centered atmosphere, to strengthen families and support the overall development of children.
